Important Flu Update!

Early indications bode for a bad 2018-2019 flu season, and medical professionals are advising people to get their annual flu shot this year to prevent the spread of the virus.

“Last year’s flu season was more intense than any since the 2009 swine flu pandemic and may be worse this year, federal health officials said on Friday.

Nationally, the number of people falling ill with flu is increasing. More worrying, the hospitalization rate—a predictor of the death rate—has just jumped annually.

It will be on track to equal or surpass that of the 2014-2015 flu season. In that year, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates, 34 million Americans got the flu, 710,000 were hospitalized and about 56,000 died.”
